

Best Apps: Jaunt, Tally, Karmic, Honk

Every Monday in Digital Playground, we give kudos to the game-changing apps that we can't live without. This week, snap out of your tryptophan-induced coma with a modern take on AAA, Paul McCartney in 360, and a digital way to get your "om" on.

Jaunt

Function: Paul McCartney is at it again with a fully immersive, virtual reality version of his "Live and Let Die" concert.

Best Feature: 360-degree, on-stage views.

Why We Love It: Finally, a reason to use our Google Cardboard.

Available: Google Play

Price: Free

Tally

Function: Tally's single-topic hashtags make for a social network of highly curated newsfeeds featuring text, images, and gifs.

Best Feature: In a nod to founder Dan Porter's previous mobile successes with Draw Something, the app allows users to draw on photos, creating instant memes.

Why We Love It: The community votes posts up or down, ensuring quality rises to the top.

Available: iTunes

Price: Free

Karmic

Function: Karmic puts the "social" in social good by challenging users to do one good deed per day. Complete tasks and share inspirational quotes to earn points and watch your app aura glow.

Best Feature: Calm your mind with one of the program's timed meditation sequences.

Why We Love It: Being grateful doesn't have to end with Thanksgiving.

Available: iTunes

Price: Free

Honk

Function: Having car trouble? There's an app for that. Honk is roadside assistance at your fingertips.

Best Feature: There's no membership fee. You only pay when you need them.

Why We Love It: The holiday season is stressful enough. Now there's no need to worry the next road trip home.

Available: iTunes

Price: App is free to download; starting rate for service is $49.

Photography: Courtesy of Jaunt App; Courtesy of Tally App

by Caroline Halleemann